01. THE KIMPTON SPIRIT.

A LITTLE BIT OF FOLLY...

When Bill Kimpton created Kimpton Hotels & Restaurants in San Francisco in 1981, he dared to take an idea and run with it, not stopping until it had become an industry reference: he turned hotels into unique experiences, tailor-made for each location. Precursor of the boutique hotel concept, he invented a new form of luxury, tossing rigid standards and elitist attitudes out the window. His motto still stands: "luxury without the fuss".

Simplicity, sincerity, benevolent attention to every detail, heartfelt human connections...

At the antipodes of traditional high-end hotel codes, the Kimpton spirit focuses on making every stay a moment of luxurious relaxation, as if you were in your own home or hosted by friends. The culture is one of conviviality where personal interactions reign supreme. Attracting a community of broad-minded aesthetes, open to the world and to others, Kimpton prides itself on promoting friendly encounters, encouraging exchanges, connecting visitors with the locals.

A splash of local colour...

75 hotels and more than 80 restaurants in 52 cities and each one tells a different story. Unique and singular. Tokyo or Tulum, Toronto or Miami, Boston or London, Barcelona or Seattle, each address reflects the intrinsic identity of the destination. Kimpton likes to think of travel as geographical and cultural immersion. Kimpton Hotels & Restaurants, which joined the IHG Hotels & Resorts group in 2015, pursues its passionate approach to storytelling, and enhancing the narrative. The creative folly of its founder resonates even today and can be experienced for the first time in France, in Paris, where Kimpton S' Honoré Paris opened.

02. THE PITCH.

PARIS, CITY OF LOVE.

Opéra Garnier, the Madeleine, Rue Saint-Honoré, the Tuileries Gardens, this is the epicentre of effervescent Parisian life. At the heart of the iconic theatre district and the capital's best shopping, all the world's a stage! Carefree, light-hearted and exuberant high spirits are the stars of the show, performing all day and into the night. The Place Vendôme and the Place de la Concorde are a stone's throw away, the Louvre and Palais-Royal Gardens a short walk beyond and Montmartre just a bit further. Here, surrounded on all sides by the capital's most beautiful monuments, Kimpton S' Honoré Paris makes its debut, centre stage.

Let the show begin (encore!)...

27-29 Boulevard des Capucines, take two! The scene opens on a superb Art Nouveau building, constructed in 1917 to house the 'La Samaritaine de Luxe' department store, the kind of décor that dreams are made of! And today, Kimpton S' Honoré Paris, the ingénue of Parisian luxury hotels, prepares to step into the spotlight. 149 rooms, a spa with indoor pool, California-inspired restaurant, rooftop bar with a show-stopping view of Paris, a strikingly modern atmosphere... Kimpton S' Honoré Paris is the first act of a spirited new story, ready to enchant guests and Parisians alike.

NEW ERA.

Let's invent a new modern era. How exhilarating to embody the here and now! 'La Samaritaine de Luxe' did just that, in 1917. And today, Kimpton S^t Honoré Paris celebrates the architectural renaissance of a remarkable edifice, a registered Historic Monument. Breathing modern energy into a symbol of 1920s Paris... a challenge, and a privilege.

'La Samaritaine de Luxe', showpiece of Art Nouveau

In 1914, Belgian architect Frantz Jourdain designed the Art Nouveau building on the Boulevard des Capucines, sculpting an ornate façade trimmed with turquoise metal framework, decorated with stylized floral patterns, in the purist early 20th century style. Marble panels, copper and wrought iron balconies, arched bay windows...he created a paradigm of Belle-Epoque elegance. The renovations overseen by Kimpton S^t Honoré Paris preserve, of course, this fabulous heritage of iconic French decorative and artisanal savoir-faire.

Contemporary mood & Art Deco spirit

The imposing interiors, trademark of Parisian department stores, have been kept intact. As was the stunning monumental stairway, a showpiece that spirals upwards and houses period lifts within its structure. At the heart of this spectacular foyer, it draws our eyes upward in a vertiginous ascent, passing interior balconies and mezzanine-level galleries, one after another, as eye-catching as ever. Today, these are the hotel lobby, commonly known as the Living Room and the lounge area: the Library. The beating heart of the hotel, they overlook the bustling Boulevard des Capucines through wide bay windows which have replaced the former store window displays. The venue still vibrates with the bright effervescence of the roaring 20s. But interior architect Charles Zana had taken the classic period décor and imbued it with the Art Deco spirit of 1930s luxury hotels.

At the crossroads of culture and fantasy, contemporary Parisian elegance by Charles Zana

Inspired by the Parisian life portrayed in Belle-Epoque brasseries and theatres, Charles Zana wanted to recreate a luxurious, devil-may-care ambiance. "Parisians will want to claim this place for their own, stepping onto a life-size stage open to the city and its residents. Generous American-style luxury, welcoming and personalized, will win them over. Reinventing the Parisian spirit was a priority for this first hotel in the city of lights; this is Kimpton's savoir-faire at its finest."

Playing with light

This new concept is a joyful medley of classic lines and Art Deco design, contemporary touches and nods to the original architecture. The facade's marble and glass is mirrored inside, with Gio Ponti-inspired geometric patterns on the floor and plenty of copper and brass. In the Living Room and the Library, the indoor-outdoor illusion is created by a play of airy sheers made of tulle woven with gold threads and hung two floors high, echoing the metal framework of the facade. A clever way to play with light and create different degrees of intimacy depending on the time of day.

A tribute to French decorative arts

Charles Zana called on the most talented artisans, heirs of traditional French craftsmanship, to work their magic on the decor: Pierre Mesguich for the ceramics and mosaics, Le Manach—an historic French textile manufacturer and part of the Pierre Frey House—for the fabrics, Caroline Perrin for the paintwork, Maison Lucien Gaud for the lighting...

The colour scheme features Gabrielle Chanel's favourite black and white, broken up by gentle touches of colour.

"The idea was to make this hotel a showcase for French excellence," explains Charles Zana.

For the love of art

Kimpton S^t Honoré Paris houses a collection of artwork, selected by Charles Zana with the help of Amélie Du Chalard from the Maison d'Art. Once again, the hotel pays homage to a prestigious past: the Cognacq-Jay family, first owners of "La Samaritaine de Luxe", who were also consummate art collectors.

CHARLES ZANA

“WE WANTED TO CREATE
A HOTEL THAT REFLECTS
A VERY PARISIAN LIFESTYLE,
BUBBLING, CULTIVATED,
JOYOUS, IN STEP
WITH ITS TIMES”.

NICE TO MEET YOU.

In Paris, like in all Kimpton hotels worldwide, luxury is a casual and friendly affair. This means Kimpton S' Honoré Paris is designed to be a venue for encounters and exchanges, creating the right time and place to connect with others. Mingle in the open spaces of the ground floor and mezzanine, the Living Room and the Library, for Social Hour at the end of the day. Take advantage of this moment for socializing, a coffee or drink in hand, in a convivial and relaxed atmosphere. Or chat with the concierge or a cook, always ready to share their secrets and experience.

Throughout the day, the cosy sofas and armchairs invite you to relax and admire the magnificent view of cascading floors overhead, the ironwork lift on one side, the Boulevard des Capucines on the other. Backgammon tables challenge you to a game. Revel in the pleasure of belonging to a cosmopolitan epicurean community which shares a certain idea of contemporary luxury. Here, you live in the moment and make every moment count.

WELCOME HOME.

Interior architect Charles Zana designed each of the 149 rooms, including 26 suites, to emulate a private Parisian flat. All wonderfully luminous, each one different, these spacious accommodations are custom-made to fit the architecture of this typical Parisian building, with its alcoves, niches and half-stories. Thirty of them have a balcony overlooking the Boulevard des Capucines and the Opéra.

The decoration is a lively repartee between past beauty and modern flair, reinterpreting iconic elements of the classic style —ledges, mouldings, panelling, woodwork, parquet, brass light switches and baseboard strips —with contemporary accents. All the furniture was specially designed by Charles Zana, from comfy sofas in tones of dusty rose, peacock blue or taupe to the streamlined lighting fixtures. And throughout the hotel, gentle, organic curves provide a contrast to the sharp geometric lines of Art Deco.

Every detail has its importance, like the headboards by Le Manach House or the fabric recreated using period designs from the archives of this manufacturer founded in 1829. This respect for tradition is then given a modern nudge with a multicolour pouf, adding an off-beat, trendy touch. Which goes to prove, culture shock can be beautiful...

Finally, every Kimpton hotel worldwide has a fun location-specific detail hidden away in each room. In Paris, this 'closet smile' comes in the form of a stylized brass rose created by the French design house Art et Floritude. This reminder of the facade's floral designs is waiting to be discovered in the wardrobe...

Carrare marble and glimmering glass

Bright and spacious, the bathrooms showcase their noble materials for all to admire. Featuring Carrare marble, they pay homage to Mallet-Stevens' stained glass with a refined play of colours and reflections. Smooth, rippled, bubbled, chequered, the glass shower doors are a masterpiece of shimmering transparency and opacity.

MENU, PLEASE...

Montecito serves California's finest, here in Paris

Designed by the architectural duo Humbert & Poyet, the Kimpton St Honoré Paris restaurant is a mix of Californian cuisine and casual elegance, making it a new dining destination in its own right.

With an entrance right off Boulevard des Capucines, Montecito is a hot spot charged with vibrant energy: day or night, there's always something going on. Seating 190, the vast dining area is built around a patio planted with a 'green' wall which can be seen through large bay windows, an oasis in the middle of Paris. Here's an elegant address that boasts the chic, informal ambiance of a Californian lifestyle. Nature is a guest of honour in both the decor and the dishes created by French Chef Nicolas Pastot and his cohort, the most American of Parisian foodies, Carrie Solomon.

Paris-Palm Springs, West Coast spirit

The decor is a subtle alchemy of Art Deco style, retro seaside and urban refinement, featuring tones of blue, green and white in select materials, from 'zellige' tiles to seat cushions, from palm trees to terrazzo floors. French chic and Hollywood glamour mingle in a refreshing atmosphere where the living is easy. Show cooking, the famous festive brunch, live music and DJ sets at the end of the week...all the ingredients are there for Parisian nights pulsating with feel-good vibes.

Healthy, delicious food under the influence

Cali Flower, roasted whole in curry coco sauce served with tahini and crispy chickpeas to share, fish tacos made with the catch of the day, guacamole and pico de gallo, crunchy langoustine tostada, a taste of the southern Baja peninsula, cobb salad with a seasonal twist, not to mention the 'light and crunchy' fried chicken lettuce wraps with mild Korean spices or the 'green garden party' 100% veggie pizzas... You'll find all the go-to West Coast specialties, made with fresh, seasonal, locally-sourced products. Like in California, the cuisine mixes and matches American, Asian and Latino influences to invent a taste of our times. From raw to vegan options, the trend steers towards healthy, with an extra helping of pleasure. Take the artisanal bread, made with heirloom flour from Italy, or the desserts, all high on flavour, low in sugar.

Wine bar, cocktails and L.A.-style juice bar

From early morning to the golden hour, there's no better place to share an arty caffe latte or smoothie, frosty cocktail or glass of wine. Napa Valley or Vallée du Rhône? The choice is yours, and as for the music, nothing but good vibes...

THE HEIGHT OF FASHION.

And how would you like to have Paris at your feet?

The highpoint of the hotel, quite literally, is on the tenth floor of Kimpton S^t Honoré Paris: the rooftop bar Sequoia, another masterstroke of interior designer Charles Zana. This garden of Eden seems to float in the Paris sky, offering a jaw-dropping view of all the capital's iconic monuments. The panorama wraps around nearly 360°, inviting you to a tête-à-tête with the City of Light, mesmerizing at any hour of the day or night.

From noon to 2 am, who can tire of admiring the Eiffel Tower, almost close enough for you grab it, Montmartre enthroned on its hilltop, Notre-Dame, the Pantheon, the Invalides dome, the sparkling forest of skyscrapers at La Defense and the new Palais de Justice in the distance. Not to mention your closest neighbour, the Opéra Garnier. You are at just the right height to stare into the eyes of the golden Harmony and Poetry statues, a truly unique vantage point. From the Middle Ages to today, the whole history of Paris marches past in a parade of silvery rooftops and Haussmann facades, as far as the eye can see.

The red carpet treatment...

As you step off the lift onto the rooftop, it feels like a film set... Making a dramatic entrance has never been easier! Strike a pose, and then another, all the way around, don't miss a single view of the city. For this outdoor urban lookout, Charles Zana dreamed up an Art Deco winter garden in oh-so-chic black and white, echoing the zinc of Parisian rooftops. Marble table tops, elegant metal details, giant mirrors on the outside walls harking back to 18th century gardens and, especially, lush plants and greenery everywhere you look. Infinitely Instagrammable! A dream decor for a Champagne toast at sunset, just the two of you, or for besties sharing a glass of rosé and a few gourmet nibbles. Unless, of course, you prefer a signature cocktail, shaken not stirred (s'il vous plaît) by master mixologists behind the bar.

Welcome to the new headquarters of cool, symbol of the renaissance of Parisian life, Sequoia vibrates with an energy all its own. Every moment is intense, a moment of life lived to the fullest.
